Halloween

As usual, this year we had Halloween parties at the Institute. Did you have fun? Here are some photos.

"My Family"

They asked me to talk about my family, but for me it is such a hard task. A few words to describe people who mean the best that I have in life...?

How can I use the thousands of superlatives that compose only the middle name of my wife Elena? But more...!

I would not be honest and fair, if I had the intention to characterize my son, Henrique, in just a hundred words, because that number is not enough to adjectivate all the amazing things he has done only with seven years old.

For example, the kiss they both have for me every mornings is always a suplement of emotional energy, that makes me the happiest husband and father in the world.

Just one example that shows how impossible it is to talk about my family in a small text.

I honestly like my English teacher, but I can't accomplish the mission she gave me...!

Sorry...!

The invention of the mobile phone / internet changed the world

There's no doubt that mobile phone and internet were invented in order to provide the development of the world. Nowadays, people have the chance of research and communicate with others, however many times they don't have the notion of the limits.

On the one hand, in my opinion mobile phone permits the communication between people a long distance. And also, with the help of internet, it allows the video conference in real time. If that weren't enough, there're applications for practically everything, like mp3 player, camera, GPS or games. The life became easier in a perspective, in fact.

On the other hand, everyone knows that our younger generation is actually less capable of normal socializing because of the instant sms, facebook chat or simply by reasons of gaming something. This is a huge problem for society since humans are social creatures by nature who need real life connections.

To conclude, I guess what I mean is this idea of facts were pretty visible and people prefer not to see them. It's better to bear in mind that mobile phones aren't real people.

"Nowadays, it is very common to hear people talking about sharing the housework equally and, although this fact makes us believe that things are really changing, that's not what's happening in most families. Therefore, it seems to me that it is fairer if we all contribute by helping our parents.

Unquestionably, in our society, teens tend to be the ones who need to work harder at home after coming from a long day at school, but it doesn't mean that parents don't feel tired and upset when they arrive home. Thus, I consider that everyone should do household chores in order to create a happier and healthier family life.

Whoever makes the bed, cleans the living room or sweeps the floor, it doesn't matter. Nobody is born taught, so it is our parents' duty to teach and prepare us for what's to come. Furthermore, learning how to cook, for example, may lead teenagers to a new hobby and may even improve some of their capacities.

Finally, I believe that the point here is finding time to share the chores with our parents or brothers/sisters, because, in the end, it feels better to do household chores with someone to talk with. What is more, even those teens who only do the housework because they are made to by their parents and who argue that they have the right to enjoy their teenage years instead of living with responsibilities should try to take some time to relax and, while listening to some good music, clean the house as it can be an easier and more useful way of getting rid of all the accumulated stress.

All in all, whether teens admit it or not, sharing housework is an extremely pleasant activity when done with the ones we love, especially because it positively affects the environment at home."
