STUDENTS WORK

Dear Teacher,

I was five days in New York. It was an amazing trip! On Saturday I visited the Empire State Building, which is one of the tallest buildings of the city. On Sunday I went to the Statue of Liberty that is situated on an island. On Monday morning I went to Times Square and in the afternoon I visited Central Park. On Tuesday I went to the World Trade Centre Memorial which is the place where the tragedy of the twin towers occurred. Finally, on Wednesday I visited the museum of Modern Art. On the next day I came back home. I really enjoyed my journey in New York!

In many homes, parents do most of the housework, even though people like to think the chores are divided equally. However, I think everyone should do their fair share.

Firstly, it is true that children spend most of the day at school and bring home a lot of homework to do. On the other hand, parents work all day long and come home tired. So, I believe it's fair to say that life would be better for both if they shared the chores.

It is thought that parents cook or clean better than the kids, and so the kids shouldn't do those activities. Well, obviously the parents are better, they've had more practice over the years, whereas the kids are still learning. In my view, saying those things only makes children not want to do the work.

Last but not least, doing the housework together will improve family life because they'll interact more with each other, plus it will also take less time. Therefore, household chores will be much more fun.

In conclusion, family life will improve a lot when the chores are shared by everyone.

My favourite photo

One of my favourite photos is of Carnival.

My aunt took the photo in the winter of 1981.

We were on holiday at Carnival. That day it snowed and the landscape was beautiful. Everything was white and cuddly.

That day, I went to a parade at school and the children were very happy. I was wearing "Dama Antiga" that my mom made. My yellow dress was nice and I had a hat. At the end of the parade we went to play with the snow. We made a snowman. It was a long, happy day.

Take devil's lick

It happened 2 years ago, in my bedroom, I was alone with my dog, my parents went to a party. So, I was scared, I was just a kid, and I had never been alone until then.

Then I tried to sleep, but I couldn't and it was 3am, that was when I heard my dog barking, it was like a scream. So, I took him to my bedroom and then I went to sleep. Everytime I woke up, my dog licked me. It happened three times, or I thought it was 3 times. At the 3rd I went to my bathroom and when I come back, well, my bed was covered with blood and it was written "The dogs aren't the only ones that lick".

It was terrifying, my parents come back and they thought I did it. The worst part was that I had to go to a psychiatrist for 5 months.

On the 11th November, the Portuguese celebrate "São Martinho", and the tradition is to eat lots of roasted chestnuts.

A STRANGE MOVE

In 1850, in another day in Autumn, Katy, Kevin, their parents and their dog Plopy were having dinner and their parents said:

- "We have to move house."

- "Really?! Why???"

- "Because your great grandparents died and we are moving to their house."

- "It's awesome".

On this night Kevin and Katy went to sleep.

When they arrived at the new house. They settled in the house, after that they found one blood stain on the floor of the great grandfather's room. They cleaned the blood stain and they went to sleep. On the next day they went to the great grandfather's room and the blood stain appeared in the different colour! They decided to investigate this case and they found a broomstick under the bed. There was a code there. This code was very strange and the code was:

- "Go to the basement."

When they went there they found their family disguised with Halloween costumes and they said:

- "HAPPY HALLOWEEN!!!!"

"The invention of the car changed the world"

It is clear that the invention of the car changed a lot the world of the transports when in 1886 Kart Benz invented the first car and in 1908, the Ford Motor company started with the mass production of cars, the car became usual in the people's life and, quickly replaced the horses and the carts.

The evidence shows that the car is faster and comfortable way to transport people and goods for everywhere. This also allowed a greater mobility of the people to look for new jobs and to know new places.

As a result with the increased car use, nowadays, the subjects like noise and air pollution, heavy traffic, security, parking areas, etc, are some examples of the problems caused by cars.

Another important point is that the word car involves so much money, from the money of families, to buy a car and to assure their maintenance, to the public money to build infrastructures and to keep them in good conditions.

In conclusion, the car is a solution for some problems that we have in our days but it is a very expensive means of transport.
